Vicki Rolens

Vicki Rolens was born and raised in the small town of Mascoutah, Illinois. She was born for the stage and started her entertainment career in grade school, participating in local community theater and starring in many well known musicals. She quickly became comfortable performing on stage and excelled in every part she played. Vicki has a “one of a kind” vocal range that stood out from the beginning. She was influenced by many vocalists including: Karen Carpenter, Patsy Kline, Whitney Houston, Reba McEntire, and Dolly Parton, just to name a few.

After college, Vicki sang with a well known St. Louis area country band called “The Long-Haired Country Boys” through the 1990’s. For over 25 years, she has been the lead vocalist in “on the path” – the contemporary worship band – at First Christian Church in Edwardsville, IL. She now stars in a very popular tribute show called “Women of Country” - a tribute to the female superstars of country music. Vicki excels in singing powerful ballads and will leave you wanting more each time she performs. Don’t miss your chance to see one of the most talented female vocalists in the St. Louis Metro Area.

“We had an Alan Jackson tribute a couple months ago, she opened up, and man, she almost stole the show. She was so good, singing Patsy Cline to Carrie Underwood, a bunch of female country artists. If you like country music and hearing amazing female vocalists from the era, this is the show you should come to.” – Al Canal, Talent/Booking Manager, Wildey Theater, Edwardsville, IL
